One of the Earth's Natural Treasures...

Chilean Nitrate Ranks with Gold, Oil, and Other Substances, In Value to Mankind

Huge electric shovels—made in the U.S.A.—rip natural nitrate ore from the earth in Chile. This is the raw "nitrate" just as Nature created it.

You think of Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda as a granulated substance, nicely bagged for easy handling to help you make better crops.

Like other natural treasures of the earth, Chilean Nitrate is mined, refined and processed before it is ready to use. The supply of this natural treasure is virtually unlimited. Beds already known contain enough nitrate ore to last for hundreds of years. Men who produce nitrate are a hardy lot. They live and work in areas where almost nothing grows and it practically never rains. Many of the engineers and executives are American. Most of their machinery is too.

Today Chilean Nitrate is so finely processed, thanks to new plants and methods, that it is shipped in bulk from Chile, bagged at American ports.

Because of its natural origin, Chilean Nitrate contains in addition to large proportions of nitrogen and sodium, small amounts of boron, iodine, manganese, copper—34 elements in all—many of which are known to be essential to healthy plant growth.

BLUE LUPINE IS KEY TO SOIL BUILDING SUCCESS

Headland, Ala.—To the county agents of the Wiregrass area meeting last week, J. P. Wilson, superintendent of the local experiment station, presented blue lupine as the key to soil building in this area.

On test plots visitors saw blue lupine better than any other legume. Mr. Wilson said it would be enough to plow under early in January. The seed were planted the middle of September. Discussion revealed that blue lupine works almost perfectly after peanuts; and the peanut is the biggest soil-improving crop produced in the Wiregrass.

In comparing blue lupine with other winter legumes, Mr. Wilson said it produces more abundantly. Its production is earlier, it is a prolific seeder, it requires less mineral fertilizer, and its stock are not liable to damage it except in walking over it.

County agents present reported substantial seed production on the way for planting next fall. They anticipated a big expansion in the acreage next year compared to the present. Along with blue lupine the visitors studied experiments in pastures. Following these they discussed corn production, or increasing its yield per acre in 1945.

County agents visiting the experiment station were: F. C. Clapp, Barbour; H. D. Section, R. E. Martin, Covington; J. A. McLeod, Crenshaw; W. D. Thomason, Dale; M. W. Lowmyer, Geneva; W. D. Webster, Henry; C. M. Ling, Houston; H. J. Carter, Pike. Other visitors included P. O. Davis, extension service director; E. V. Smith, assistant experiment station director, and Emmett Sizemore, extension district agent.

been awarded the Combat Infantryman Badge for exemplary conduct in action against the enemy.

"We fought off 34 Jerry counterattacks in 60 hours," he said. "Our weapons were in action 24 hours a day. During that time, I had more narrow escapes than I can count. One '88' shell that hit near me killed or wounded 14 men close to me. At night, the Krauts tried to infiltrate and get close enough to throw grenades. I threw some grenades myself and I believe several of them killed Nazis, because at one time, after a night counterattack, there were three German bodies in front of my foxhole. We captured a couple of hundred Jerries and put them to work carrying the wounded across the river."

Pfc. Maddox has good reason to remember historic Verdun, for it was there, after his division had played an important part in forcing the enemy to relinquish the city, that the Doughboys seized a Nazi supply dump. The equipment captured included 300 warm jackets of rabbit fur, intended for issue to enemy troops at the approach of winter.

Our commanding general ordered that every man in the "Red Diamond" Division should have one of those jackets," the Infantryman said. "I was glad to have mine, for the weather got right nippy and a Doughboy, who seldom has an opportunity to get warm when he's engaged in cold-weather fighting, needs every bit of warm clothing he can find."

"Pfc. Maddox, who was interviewed at Halloran General Hospital, Staten Island, N. Y., received his basic training with the 87th Infantry Division at Camp McCain, Miss.

The Clipper also received a large photograph of Pfc. Maddox which shows him wearing the Nazi "issue" jacket of rabbit fur. He is also displaying a prized watch which he carried with him all through the intensive combat in which he took part. This and other photographs are on display at The Clipper office.

A small amount of cold sweet milk beaten lightly into overwhipped cream will cause the cream to lose its overwhipped appearance.

A little vinegar stirred into the water used for washing windows in the winter time helps to keep the water from freezing.

MADDOX SAYS FIGHTING ON MOSELLE RIVER WAS "WORST OF ALL"

Bitter fighting in defense of an important bridgehead on the eastern shore of the Moselle River, established by elements of the 8th Infantry Division, was described in a War Department interview with Pfc. Fred R. Maddox, 31, of New Brockton, recently.

Pfc. Maddox, son of Mrs. E. L. Maddox, has been evacuated to the United States as a result of illness caused by long exposure to severe weather conditions on the Western Front.

"I saw a lot of rough fighting," the Doughboy said, "but that battle on the shore of the Moselle was the worst of all. After we forced a crossing of the river and established the bridgehead against stubborn resistance, the Germans counterattacked furiously. They seemed to cover the ground we held with 88-mm and mortar shells, then they charged us."

"But we were determined not to yield the position we had fought so hard for and we stood them off, with every man doing a magnificent job."

For its work in crossing the Moselle and holding the bridgehead despite savage enemy counterattacks, Pfc. Maddox's battalion earned a unit citation, giving him the right to wear the Distinguished Unit Badge. The Alabama Infantryman, a machinegunner, also has

Improved SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Televised by Western Newspaper Union

Lesson for March 18

THE LAW OF LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 23:23-46. GOLDEN TEXT—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."—Matthew 22:37-39.

Our lesson presents a great judgment scene—majestic, solemn, stirring. Many confuse it with the judgment of the Great White Throne in Revelation 20. But Matthew 25 is obviously the judgment of nations (v. 32) for their treatment of Christ's brethren (v. 40), a word referring primarily to Jews, but also spoken of in Matthew 12:45-50.

The lesson needs broader application, however, so we suggest that we allow the more general principles of judgment occupy our attention. We note that:

1. Judgment divides (vv. 31-33). The nations, coming before Christ when He shall appear in all His glory, shall find themselves separated into two groups on the basis of their treatment of the brethren of Christ.

The fact that God has drawn a line of division down through all humanity and that each one of us is on one side or the other is not a doctrine which men readily accept. They prefer to believe that it is a doctrine which men should accept. No man established that division—God Himself did it, and did it in love. To some it may seem to be a hard saying, but it is not, for it comes from the lips of the gentle, loving Jesus.

It is because He loved us enough to give Himself for us that we find ourselves on the side of that dividing line which assures us of eternal joy and blessedness.

They who stand on the other side of the line do so because they have not accepted God's proffered salvation in Christ. Reader, where do you stand?

II. Judgment declares (vv. 34-45). Our attitude toward God expresses itself in our attitude toward our fellow man. That which we do toward those about us is not a matter of indifference, but is the basis for God's judgment of our lives. Even of us must answer for the deeds done in the flesh whether they be good or evil. That is true even of the believer (II Cor. 5:10), whose salvation has already been determined by his faith in Christ.

Here in our lesson, however, the failure to do that which shows forth God's law of love is made the ground of eternal judgment. This is not because an act of kindness itself can be regarded as the ground of division, but because the failure to give it or to reflect an attitude of heart toward our God and His Christ, which is in reality a rejection of His way of salvation.

Judgment is thus a revelation of the attitude of the heart, which marks a man or woman as being either a sinner or a saint. It may be possible to so belated the thinking of our friends and neighbors that we may go through life looking something like a Christian, but when Christ judges, it will all be revealed to us.

Notice the importance of a proper attitude toward those who need our kindness and help. All too often the only concern of men and women is to look out for "number one" and let the rest of the world shift for itself.

Observe also that the Lord identifies Himself with His brethren—what is done to and for them is counted as done to and for Him. Compare the experience of Samuel (I Sam. 8:7) and of Paul (Acts 9:5). Touch God's people and you touch Him. Fall them and you fall Him. Serve them and you serve Him.

III. Judgment determines (v. 46). Yes, God's judgment determines eternal destiny. Life eternal, or everlasting punishment, which shall it be? That is determined by God's final word of judgment, but remember that He judges in accordance with the attitude of heart and action of life on this side of the grave.

Now, for that matter, is a part of eternity, and it is consequently of great importance that we are right with both God and man now if we expect to be right throughout eternity.

We need to face this truth of judgment with complete candor and honest heart-searching. We agree with Dr. Douglas that "we must stand with awful concern before this solemn truth. Do not hesitate to teach this because it is contrary to the current of modern thinking or shocking to confront. It needs to be faced in a brave spirit of realism. (As a teacher) you will do your pupils a great disservice if you try to shield them from the grim implications of this truth."

Yes, and also if you keep from them the glorious prospect of eternal life. The law of love—love for God, and for Jesus Christ whom He hath sent to be our Redeemer, and love for His brethren. That law of love rules even in the day of judgment.

US VICTORY PULPWOOD CAMPAIGN

Although British farmers now are being paid adequate prices for practically all the main food products to return a profit on the farm by the government, the present British policy is not assured after the war, it was reported.

British farmers enjoyed prosperity during World War I, but the repeal of price and wage guarantees in 1920 left the farmers without protection when prices for their products dropped, driving much land into use as pasture.

In the early 1930s, British agriculture became so hard pressed that a system of direct subsidization was adopted. The subsidization system was continued after the outbreak of World War II by a policy of guaranteed prices for essential farm products.

Under the agreement providing for shipment of over 15 billion dollars of raw materials, food, petroleum products and light manufacturing equipment, repayment would be in 30 annual installments at 2 per cent interest, while deliveries of almost 1 billion dollars of locomotives, freight cars, machinery for mines, industrial equipment, ships and barges would be made with a 20 per cent down payment and 30-year amortization of the remainder.

To maintain the present French army and double its strength of eight divisions, the U. S. agreed to continue loaning military supplies. In return, the French promised increased reciprocal aid.

WORLD PEACE: Pattern for U. S.

Once quoted as saying that Secretary Woodrow Wilson failed to secure U. S. entrance into the League of Nations because he was not a politician, Master Politician Franklin D. Roosevelt fired the first gun in the campaign to obtain approval for this country's participation in a postwar organization to preserve peace in an address to the nation and congress on the historic Yalta conference.

To assure the effectiveness of a postwar peace program, the President said the U. S. collaboration must be two-fold.

First, this country must join in a world organization to suppress aggression, if necessary, by force.

Second, the U. S. must provide relief to alleviate suffering in the liberated states, and furnish credits for the reconstruction of the economy so that they might be able to resume full production and stand on their own.

"There can be no middle ground," declared the President. "We shall have to take the responsibility for world collaboration or we shall have to bear the responsibility for another world conflict."

Aid French

In an agreement that might set the pattern for future arrangements, the U. S. granted the French a 2½ billion dollar lend-lease credit to be paid within 30 years.

Under the agreement providing for shipment of over 15 billion dollars of raw materials, food, petroleum products and light manufacturing equipment, repayment would be in 30 annual installments at 2 per cent interest, while deliveries of almost 1 billion dollars of locomotives, freight cars, machinery for mines, industrial equipment, ships and barges would be made with a 20 per cent down payment and 30-year amortization of the remainder.

To maintain the present French army and double its strength of eight divisions, the U. S. agreed to continue loaning military supplies. In return, the French promised increased reciprocal aid.

EUROPE: Vital Areas

With Allied armies poised against both the vital Ruhr and Saar valleys, the Germans fought with their backs against the wall in a desperate effort to hold on to these industrial districts so important to their war effort.

Already heavily battered by aerial bombardment, the Ruhr and Saar faced the prospect of destructive artillery drum-fire, destined to lay the smoke-blackened cities and coal and iron-mining districts in gaunt ruins.

Offering only sporadic resistance to the rolling columns of the U. S. and British troops west of the Rhine, the Germans bent a steady retreat back to the river, evidently intending to put up a strong stand behind the 1,300 to 3,270 foot wide waterway rather than in the rolling plains before it, where superior Allied armor could chew up their diminishing strength.

During the Nazis' withdrawal, fleets of Allied bombers roared over rear areas, not only smashing at road and rail lines in an effort to hamper troop movements, but also hitting at the magnitude of the Allied aerial bombardment can be gathered from reports that British-based U. S. planes alone dropped over 51,000 tons on Germany in February.

While falling back to the Rhine on the U. S. 9th and 1st and British 2nd army fronts in the north, the Germans utilized the rugged Eifel and Hunsrück mountain country at the northern rim of the Saar in an effort to tie up the U. S. 3rd Army's advance to the south. In every way, the Germans, familiar from A to Z with the country, were making every attempt to use the terrain to meet the Allied threat with a minimum of manpower.

Slightly larger than the state of Delaware, the besieged Ruhr cradled 75 per cent of the enemy's war industry in 1942, with its great coal deposits, estimated at 90 per cent of Germany's reserves and half of continental Europe's, forming the basis for its manufacturing. Besides armaments, the Ruhr's 5,000,000 people produced steel, chemicals, pig iron, textiles, synthetic oil, high octane gas, rayon, drugs, plastics, dyes, bricks, glass and pottery.

Smaller than Rhode Island, the Saar relied upon massive coal beds and iron deposits for the basis of its thriving industry, which produced steel, machinery, cement, plate glass, shoes, paper and textiles besides war goods.

Pocketed before by the Germans during the latter's great sweeps through Russia earlier in the war, the Red generals were taking no chances on being slipped off all over again on the eastern front.

Although their forces had reached the Oder and Neisse rivers due east of Berlin on a broad front, the Red generals sought to minimize the possibilities of a German attack on their flanks far to the rear of the forward positions.

Holding up their fire on the central front until securing their flanks, the Reds exerted strong pressure against the Germans strung out along the Baltic coast immediately above the right wing of Zhukov's 1st White Russian army. To the south on the left wing of Konev's 1st Ukrainian army, the Reds guarded against the danger of a Nazi thrust from Upper Silesia, where the latter had set up strong lines to defend the industrial district and approaches to Czechoslovakia's Axis-worked plants.

Carrier pilots, marines and army men all shared the spotlight in the developing attacks aimed at smashing Jap outposts of the home islands to smother the road to Tokyo.

Unchallenged by the once-vaunted Japanese imperial fleet, Vice Admiral Marc Mitscher's famed Task Force 58 continued to roam in the enemy's home waters, with his carrier planes following up during attacks on Tokyo, smashing at the Ryukyus islands flanking the sea route to the east.

WORLD PEACE: Pattern for U. S.

Once quoted as saying that Secretary Woodrow Wilson failed to secure U. S. entrance into the League of Nations because he was not a politician, Master Politician Franklin D. Roosevelt fired the first gun in the campaign to obtain approval for this country's participation in a postwar organization to preserve peace in an address to the nation and congress on the historic Yalta conference.

To assure the effectiveness of a postwar peace program, the President said the U. S. collaboration must be two-fold.

First, this country must join in a world organization to suppress aggression, if necessary, by force.

Second, the U. S. must provide relief to alleviate suffering in the liberated states, and furnish credits for the reconstruction of the economy so that they might be able to resume full production and stand on their own.

"There can be no middle ground," declared the President. "We shall have to take the responsibility for world collaboration or we shall have to bear the responsibility for another world conflict."

Aid French

In an agreement that might set the pattern for future arrangements, the U. S. granted the French a 2½ billion dollar lend-lease credit to be paid within 30 years.

Under the agreement providing for shipment of over 15 billion dollars of raw materials, food, petroleum products and light manufacturing equipment, repayment would be in 30 annual installments at 2 per cent interest, while deliveries of almost 1 billion dollars of locomotives, freight cars, machinery for mines, industrial equipment, ships and barges would be made with a 20 per cent down payment and 30-year amortization of the remainder.

To maintain the present French army and double its strength of eight divisions, the U. S. agreed to continue loaning military supplies. In return, the French promised increased reciprocal aid.

SCHOOL ON "MAKING HANDBAGS" HELD FOR LEADERS IN ELBA

By Hilda Frederick, Asst. Home Dem. Asst.
Twenty-eight leaders representing 17 home demonstration clubs attended a leadership school on "Making Handbags" in Elba on Monday, February 26.

Selection and care of handbags as well as the construction were taken up during all-day meetings while bags were cleaned with dry cleaning fluid. Patterns and samples of "home made" bags were shown, and many of the leaders began work on bags to be completed before their regular club meeting date in March. All of the leaders cut patterns to carry back to their communities.

"Handbags" is the study being made in home demonstration clubs in March. Some of the clubs are holding all-day meetings while others are meeting only in the afternoons.
